

Learning journeys for reimagining government

BIG IDEAS AND PRACTICAL TIPS FOR REIMAGINING GOVERNMENT

Our learning journeys are designed for people in and around the public sector who are curious about exploring new ideas, in new ways.

We offer half-day 'orientations' and full-day 'expeditions' on topics including collaboration in complexity, adaptive leadership, and systems thinking.

Orientations

- An opportunity to begin familiarising yourselves with ideas, concepts and tools for reimagining government
- Delivered online for 3.5 hours
- Up to 50 people

Expeditions

- A chance to more deeply explore and apply ideas, concepts, and tools
- Delivered online or in-person, for a full day (or two half-days if delivered online)
- Up to 35 people

OUR APPROACH

Bespoke

We adapt content to your specific needs and context.

Collective learning

We focus on coaching and learning together.

Big ideas, practical tips

We provide inspiration grounded in practical advice.

Being and doing

We explore shifts in individual and collective behaviours (doing) and the mindsets that drive what we do (being).

Experiential and engaging

We create unique learning experiences built on transformative learning pedagogy.

Reflective

We create space for reflection to deepen understanding and draw on the collective wisdom in the room.

WHAT WE CAN EXPLORE TOGETHER

We offer learning journeys on the following topics:

Collaboration in complexity

For teams in the public sector who want to learn tools and ideas to support collaboration in complex environments.

Adaptive leadership

For public sector leaders who want to apply an adaptive leadership approach, and explore together what that means for themselves and the system(s) they lead.

Systems thinking - a collaboration with The Systems School

For anyone in government who wants to begin learning about systems thinking and how it can be applied in government.

WHAT OUR PARTNERS SAY

“With a carefully crafted program, our participants were actively engaged and able to shift their thinking away from traditional, linear problem-solving towards a system-wide approach to innovation.”

Benjamin Cerezo

Director, Learning and Leadership at Queensland Public Sector Commission

“Working with the CPI team has been a great mixture of fun and challenge. Sharing the common intent of improving capability and outcomes in an environment of mutual trust and respect is a powerful combination”

Simon Kent

Deputy CEO at Australia New Zealand School of Government (ANZSOG)

ABOUT US

The Centre for Public Impact is a non-profit organisation dedicated to reimagining government so it works for everyone.

The team in Australia and Aotearoa New Zealand works closely with our colleagues in North America, Europe and Asia. While we are firmly grounded in place, we leverage our global presence and draw from international case studies and expertise to inform our learning journeys.
